Performance Routine

Play Nine Holes

Do these explorations on each hole for nine holes.

Hole 1:	Keep your Play Box focus to the end of the swing.
Hole 2:	Keep your Play Box focus until the ball lands, or on putts until it stops rolling.
Hole 3:	Have one Play Box focus for the backswing and another for the forward swing.
Hole 4:	State your decision to yourself with a very strong body language and a confident voice.
Hole 5:	Close your eyes and feel yourself experiencing a great Play Box before stepping into the shot.
Hole 6:	Only use your gut / instinct in your Think Box.
Hole 7:	Say something positive about each shot, about the process or outcome.
Hole 8:	Any Great, Good or Good Enough shots or process double the positive feeling.
Hole 9:	First evaluate the process and then the outcome being neutral or happy.

Discover Your Best Golf

The intention is to:

- Be more aware of your performance state.
- Discover how well you keep attention on your performance state, and not outcome and technique.
- Discover what helps you play better and enjoy it more.

You will be asked to do something before, during, after or between shots. After each hole, rate yourself on a scale of 1-5 how well you kept your attention on the task (and not outcome or technique). A five means 100% attention on the task.

After 6, 12 and 18 holes, write down which exploration tasks help you enjoy the game more or make you play better.

Your golfing ability is a blend of your technique and your ability to create a good performance state. You can influence your performance state, and today you learn how to do it.

You do not need to score or count points. You can move your ball from lies you don't like.
